Foreword

It gives me great pleasure to write this foreword for the Fazl Ali College Journal (A Multidisciplinary Publication), Volume 7 (2017).

At the very outset, I congratulate and thank the Fazl Ali College Journal Division for relentlessly working hard for regular publication of the Journal and qualitative improvement of the articles. I take immense pleasure in the fact that this Journal is the first among those of the colleges in Nagaland to be shortlisted in the UGC's list of recommended Journals.

Today, with a sense of confidence and great satisfaction, I can say that the Fazl Ali College Journal will provide wider platform for researchers, scholars and academicians both in the local and global level to share their vast knowledge through this journal.

I am sure with this achievement, the standard of the Journal will be maintained, creating opportunities for higher academic pursuits.

It has been observed that, with the passing of years, the quest for learning and writing has improved significantly and this Journal reflects this both in the field of academics and in the field of research.

To me this Journal is one of the assets of the College, especially since figuring in the category of UGC's recommended list of Journals; a laudable achievement that the Editorial members have made.

This Journal exhibits the relentless efforts of the Journal Division who have worked so hard for making this publication a success.

I am sure that the readers will enjoy and benefit a lot from the various articles published, covering a wide range of disciplines. It is a matter of honour for the College to have scholars working tirelessly on research related to the issues of the times.

I extend my heartiest congratulations to the Editorial team for their hard work in bringing out this journal.
